John Vassar, Co-respondent Named by Dr. Zimmerman, Tells an Astonishing Story

WYER IS ACCUSED.

Zimmerman Collapses in Court, Screams Hysterically, but Testifies Later.

A co-respondent's confession of how a wife was lured from her home, wined and dined and then taken to a cheap hotel, which the husband and his sensational turn to-day to the divorce action of Dr. David Zimmerman, a presperous Harlem dentist, against his young wife, Julia Larkin Zimmerman, begun yesterday before Justice Platzek in the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Zimmerman, in defending the suit, accused the co-respondent, John Vassar, one time engaged with Louis Julian in the Metropolitan, Piorence Dunnell and a lawyer of conspiracy. The wife does not deny being found in Varsar's company, but alleges that she became so stupified with wine as to be unconscious of her surroundings and

But the Mayor haited his many duties for a few moments to express at my request his personal views of the duties and rewards of motherhood.

Mr. Gaynor had given an intimation of his opinions in a letter which he wrote last Tuesday to Julius Riess of 848 Freeman street regretting his inability to attend the sixtleth wedding anniversary of Mr. Riess's mother-

"I wish I could attend," the Mayor wrote. "The most important thing of all is that your father-in-law and mother-in-law have raised a family of eight children. "Even school teaching seems too arduous for a woman. How drawn and careworn to young woman school teacher gets after a few years of work! But we are face to face with the fact that women are working; that they have to work;

I recalled that at my first glimpse of Mr. Gaynor I thought

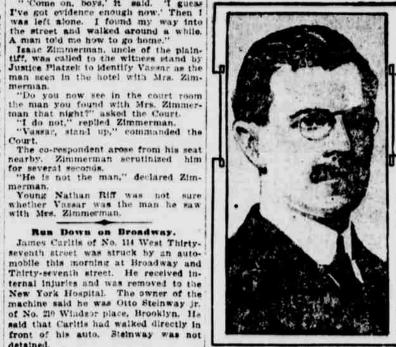

I had never seen any one before whose face combined the qualities of keenness and kindness to the same degree. These qualities, as we all know, are not often found in the same person, yet they are the right and left hands of Which may be one reason why so many of us consider Mr. Gaynor an ideal executive and another Aristides. Generally speaking, chivalry covers a multitude of sins

But Mr. Gaynor's chivalry is not that kind. He speaks of women with a genuine deference, and while his sentiments concerning them may be old-fashioned, they do not grate upon the modern woman's ears as Mr. Roosevelt's do. The views may be the views of Esau, but the voice is the voice of Jacob-a gentleman, a diplomat and an admirer of women, as all good Bible readers know.

"A man can't help admiring a pretty woman. He feels that he wants to do everything he can for her, but when he realizes that she has taken away his job he can't help getting mad," the Mayor continued. "I use the street cars very little, as I prefer to walk, but when I have been in a car I have noticed that many men no longer give their seats to women-not even to pretty women. I think that attitude on the part of men is the result of resentment—they feel that women are lowering men's wages, taking away men's jobs."

"But the women can't help that," I objected,
"No." admitted Mr. Gaynor, "they can't. But I feel of women necessary are bad. Women are not fitted to work. When they have to do so they are robbed of greatest happiness-motherhood. And the result is as

"Does your Honor know of any remedy for the conditions MOTHER OF FISHERMAN TOLD which are forcing more and more women into industry?"
